Joan Rivers has come under fire for comments she made about Jews during a segment on her controversial style show Fashion Police.

The veteran comic, whose parents were Russian Jewish immigrants, critiqued a dress worn by German supermodel Heidi Klum during Monday’s episode of the E! series, saying, “The last time a German looked this hot was when they were pushing Jews into the ovens.”

The remark, in reference to the Jewish prisoners of war killed by Nazis during the Holocaust, has upset leaders of the Anti-Defamation League, who are now demanding an apology from Rivers.

The league’s director Abraham H. Foxman, a Holocaust survivor himself, says, “Of all people, Joan Rivers should know better. This remark is so vulgar and offensive to Jews and Holocaust survivors, and indeed to all Americans, that we cannot believe it made it to the airwaves. Almost as bad as her original comment is the fact that she sat there doubled over with laughter after saying it.

“There are certain things about the Holocaust that should be taboo. This is especially true for Jews, for whom the Holocaust is still a deeply painful memory. It is vulgar and offensive for anybody to use the death of six million Jews and millions of others in the Holocaust to make a joke, but this is especially true for someone who is Jewish and who proudly and publicly wears her Jewishness on her sleeve.”

Joan Rivers Refuses to Apologize for Holocaust Joke

Once again, Joan Rivers is in hot water over a joke she made about Nazi Germany and the Holocaust.

Commenting on German model Heidi Klum’s daring Oscar party dress on El’s “Fashion Police” Monday, the 75-year-old comedian cracked: “The last time a German looked this hot was when they were pushing Jews into the ovens.”

Rivers, herself Jewish, then doubled over with laughter.

Anti-Defamation League director Abraham Foxman quickly condemned Rivers’ remark.

“Of all people, Joan Rivers should know better. This remark is so vulgar and offensive to Jews and Holocaust survivors, and indeed to all Americans, that we cannot believe it made it to the airwaves,” Foxman said in a statement on the ADL website. “Making it worse, not one of her co-hosts made any effort to respond or to condemn this hideous statement, leaving it hanging out there and giving it added legitimacy through their silence.

“Almost as bad as her original comment is the fact that she sat there doubled over with laughter after saying it,” Foxman added.

Rivers, however, refuses to apologize.

In a statement to ABCNews.com, she said, “My husband lost the majority of his family at Auschwitz, and I can assure you that I have always made it a point to remind people of the Holocaust through humor.”

Klum has yet to comment on Rivers’ remark. Her rep did not respond immediately to ABCNews.com’s request for comment.

Rivers ran afoul of the ADL last year, while protesting Costco’s decision not to carry her book, “I Hate Everything... Starting With Me.” She compared the retailer to Nazi Germany.

“Germany is where banning books started, and it can start here just as quickly,” she said at the time.

After she was criticized, Rivers quipped, “Don’t talk to me about the Holocaust!”
